IT'S GO TIME.
Sign up for New Student Orientation
At New Student Orientation (NSO) this summer you’ll explore our beautiful campus, connect with your fellow new Hoosiers, and register for your first semester classes.

Don’t worry, you won’t have to go it alone—our staff will help guide you along the way.
MAKE YOUR NEW STUDENT ORIENTATION RESERVATION NOW

NSO is required for all new students.

Choose your NSO date at fye.indiana.edu for the June/July program. Make your reservation ASAP for the most date options.

Can’t make it to Bloomington this summer? You’ll get information about our August program in the NSO reservation system. (Remember, you won’t be able to register for classes until you attend NSO.)
AFTER YOU RESERVE YOUR NSO SPOT

When you choose your NSO date, you’ll also:

• Confirm your intended major
• Tell us if you’ll need disability assistance
• Answer some questions to help your advisor better guide you

Remember, as the new student, you need to be the one to make your reservation.

Read your online confirmation.

After you’ve made your reservation, you’ll see a confirmation page with tons of useful info, including:

• Things you need to do before NSO (like taking required tests)
• Details about travel, parking, meals, and accommodations (including special hotel deals for your family)

Oh, and you can bring a guest.

Parents and family are an important part of your IU experience, so we have a program just for them. They’ll find out how they can help you make the jump into college life and learn how IU supports your success.

Designate a parent or guardian on your reservation to allow them to see your NSO confirmation page and get updates.

What’s it cost?

A nonrefundable New Student Orientation/First Year Programs fee of $210 will be added to your first bill from IU. You don’t need to pay this fee before NSO, but you are responsible for paying that bill by the due date.
NEXT STEPS

Here’s what you need to know to start your first year off right:

Take care of your to-dos.

Use your to-do list in the NSO reservation system to organize your required online tasks, like placement exams, MyStudentBody, MoneySmarts, and iGPS. (It’s okay if you don’t know what those are yet… trust us, you will.)

Make your travel plans (but not yet).

Wait until you’ve made your NSO reservation to make travel plans, since dates will vary for each student.

Stay on campus for NSO.

We don’t want you to miss a thing. If you stay on campus, you’ll be where the action is—including our popular NSO Late Nite. Check your confirmation for more details about housing options for you and hotel options for your guests.

Watch the mail.

About three weeks before your confirmed NSO reservation date, you’ll get a packet in the U.S. Mail with important details and an NSO parking pass.

BEYOND NSO

NSO is just the beginning. We’re here to guide you through your first year of exploring events and resources in global learning, academics and careers, equity and inclusion, and arts and culture. Learn about our Welcome Week and Experience IU programs at fye.indiana.edu.
Indiana University is an Affirmative Action/Equal Opportunity institution.

Students who may need disability support services should visit the Office of Disability Services for Students website at studentaffairs.indiana.edu/disability-services-students, or contact the office via phone at 812-855-7578.

Si desea recibir información adicional sobre Indiana University en español, por favor comuníquese con La Casa, el Centro Cultural Latino, al 812-855-0174 o envíe un mensaje por correo electrónico (email) a lacasa@indiana.edu.

March 2018, Office of First Year Experience Programs